Annual Report 21
There is nothing like the beginning of a new school year!

This fall season has been wonderful. During my first few months as Head of School, I have spent time meeting and engaging in good conversations about the school with students, parents, grandparents, Board of Trustees, faculty, and staff about our school. From the first day of school, during Carnival, and through the Halloween picnic, I have enjoyed talking with you and especially meeting your sons and daughters.

O ur Lamplighter students are amazing young people. They are curious, interested in learning and love school! As I think about what makes Lamplighter special, I want to share five points that I believe make The Lamplighter School a phenomenal place to learn and grow.

First, Lamplighter is a school that attends to the whole child. The faculty is a dedicated, caring team of professional educators. They are focused on assisting each child develop habits of mind. More than teaching facts, they are particularly skilled in teaching children how to learn. This metacognitive approach to teaching makes children aware of their own thinking. Methods used by faculty distinguish Lamplighter from other schools. At Lamplighter, children construct knowledge through an interdisciplinary curriculum; this approach encourages lifelong learning and a willingness to embrace difficult tasks rather than shying away from challenges. Learning new things is fun!

Second, the words “The Lamplighter School” and “community” are interchangeable. Children learn from and with each other. That is the hallmark of a caring community. Each week it is so heartening to see grandparents and parents participating in their child’s education. Reading to children, helping with tours, organizing the Friday lunch program, assisting in the Media Center and attending fun events like the Lamplighter Socials and the Auction are just a few of the ways in which parents demonstrate their commitment to ensuring that we have a strong and vibrant school community.

Third, Lamplighter students are intrinsically motivated. Conventional practices that are common in other schools, like over-assigning homework, grading everything that is written and testing every new concept, are sure-fire ways to diminish enthusiasm for learning. At first, students may enjoy striving for the sticker; but over a period of time, without a balanced approach to teaching, extrinsically motivated children become point grubbers interested only in the grade. The Lamplighter way is different. Our students come into school each day intrinsically motivated. They want to learn because learning new things is fun. In this age of high-stakes testing, Lamplighter is counter-cultural and it is refreshing.

The fourth observation I have made as a newcomer is that Lamplighter teachers teach for deep understanding. Children approach learning with a sense of wonder and a desire to learn. The interdisciplinary curriculum is thoughtfully planned and structured well. We know that we cannot teach everything so the curriculum is intentionally narrow and deep which gives students time for exploration during their foundational years. All too often, schools make the mistake of offering a curriculum that is broad and shallow. A lot is covered but in the end, students only have a few isolated facts that can quickly be forgotten. When students are taught for deep understanding, they learn how things are connected, they see patterns, and they learn how to generalize and replicate what they know. Lamplighter teaches for deep understanding.

Last, our school takes children seriously. We know that childhood is a special time that is over too fast. Lamplighter children are engaged in ways that have relevance to them. Our school has a special way of capturing their attention and imagination. Children have a chance to experience concepts that are being taught first-hand, and then they are discussed at different times and in creative ways.

Lamplighter faculty believes that each child has unique gifts that deserve to be supported and enhanced in school. The plain truth of the matter is that every child starts from a different place, and at the end of formal schooling every young adult will be going to a different place. Lamplighter honors the individuality of each child in the formative years. There is no better gift!

It is a pleasure to lead this marvelous school. Going forward, we will be working together to enhance our school through a strategic visioning process. Every member of the Lamplighter community will be invited to participate. Be assured that the enhancements will build on the strong Lamplighter tradition and mission that the founders, Natalie Murray and Sandy Swain, intended. Our goal is to continue to strengthen our school as we build and plan for the future.

Please take time to review the outstanding performance of the community provided in the annual report. Thank you very much for your continued support of our amazing school, its faculty, its programs, and of course, its children.

On lighting a lamp:
Fuel the lamp with a world of information…
Find the spark of curiosity and feed it well…
Set the wick high and let the flame burn free
in a happy, open place
Enough lamps and we can light the earth

Sincerely

Joan Buchanan Hill
Head of School
Dear Lamplighter Community,

We have hit the ground running this year with so many important initiatives already in progress. The most exciting news is the addition of our new Head of School, Mrs. Joan Buchanan Hill. She has settled into her new home with ease, and it seems as if she has always been a part of Lamplighter.

The Board of Trustees is focused on three priorities this year. First, we hold ourselves responsible for ensuring a smooth transition for our new Head of School into the Lamplighter community as well as the larger Dallas community. We are fortunate to have Joan who wants to make a difference in our children’s lives every day, and she also understands the importance of placing weight on her involvement in local organizations.

As we all know by now, Joan’s calm, graceful demeanor is precisely what Lamplighter needed. Her child-centric educational philosophy perfectly meshes with Lamplighter’s. She truly is an empathetic, progressive, accomplished educator and leader. In this most exciting time in our school’s future we have a true lifelong learner to lead our precious children by the best of examples.

The head of school installation, held on October 2 was a fitting welcome for Joan. Thanks to all of those involved, the ceremony was flawless. Having Liza Lee, former Head Mistress at Hockaday and current Head of School at the Columbus School for Girls, present Joan to us was moving. Seeing so many of you in the audience showed not only support for Joan, but a sincere desire to help make the next chapter for our school a truly amazing one.

Second, we continue to be focused on the financial stability of the school. We approach this goal in many ways. The Annual Fund and Auction are two of the most important endeavors in helping us close the gap in our annual operating budget. As you all know, we were afforded the incredible opportunity to purchase our land from Hockaday almost two years ago. Through the leadership of Kirsten Kerrigan and the steering committee and Sandy Diamond in the Development Office, we continue our targeted efforts to retire the mortgage on our land. We hope to finish raising money for the land by the end of this school year. Doing so will allow us to focus on the next phase which will support the highest-priority needs of the school.

This leads to our most important and exciting task. We are beginning to work on our strategic plan which we expect to complete in late 2012. The purpose of strategic planning is to confirm our mission, set forth our vision, and lay out goals to achieve this vision over the next 5 to 10 years. We are committed to an engaging process involving all of our constituencies. This will allow you as parents, alums, past parents, faculty, staff, and community members to participate in this important and exciting planning. Catherine Rose is leading this effort for the Board, and you will undoubtedly hear from her and Joan Hill regarding opportunities for you to weigh in on our thinking.

What can you do to help us achieve our goals?

• Continue to open your arms to Joan Hill and offer her constructive input, when appropriate. You can even let her know when things are going great!

• Make your pledge to the Annual Fund and join us for another great Auction event on February 25, 2012.

• Support the land campaign.

• Attend the Meet the Head lunches and answer any surveys we may conduct in order to gather your input during our strategic planning process.

Thanks to each and every one of you for continuing to be such important parts of our school. We are who we are because of all of you.

Sincerely,

Karen Pollock
Chair, Lamplighter Board of Trustees

“Example isn’t another way to teach, it is the only way to teach.” – Einstein

Lifelong Learners Lamplighter teachers not only instill a lifelong love of learning in their students, they exemplify it by returning to school to further develop their skills and knowledge. For example, Carrie Bays, June Landry, and Kate Ogden have recently completed Masters of Education degrees, and Brian McCool is in the process of completing one. Johanna Nystrom and Nicole Foster recently completed Bachelor’s degrees. Jezabel Guadalupe recently received a Master’s of Bilingual Education, Lauren Hosek is pursuing a Master’s degree in counseling and Bill Burton recently completed a second Master’s degree in information science.

When Jody Stout, who recently received a Master’s of Liberal Studies degree, was asked about her decision to return to school, she said, “The challenge of being a student again was an opportunity to grow as a teacher and as a person.” This dedication to lifelong learning extends beyond the faculty and is shared by Lamplighter’s Head of School, Joan Hill, who is in her final year of the doctoral program in educational leadership at the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Education. At Lamplighter, learning does not stop at the end of a school day but lasts throughout a lifetime.

170 Dresses “Beautiful girls, beautiful dresses” was the overwhelming consensus among Lamplighter alumnae Coco Freling, Katie Kerrigan, Chandler Tucker and Lauren Chilton as they helped girls from Warren Easton Charter School in New Orleans select their upcoming prom attire.

The moment marked the culmination of a year-long joint project between The Lamplighter School and Dallas Market Center that included Lamplighter alumni and staff coordinating and delivering 170 prom dresses to students at the Warren Easton School. This marks the second year the two groups have collaborated. The high school was severely damaged as a result of Hurricane Katrina in 2005.

“This event demonstrated the importance of sharing in the building of community, one of our major goals at The Lamplighter School,” reports Sandy Diamond, Lamplighter’s Director of Advancement. “It was a most rewarding experience for our young alumni.”

The Lamplighter group traveled to New Orleans recently to deliver the dresses. “We were met with much enthusiasm and had a great time meeting our new friends,” recalls Lamplighter alumna Katie Kerrigan. “We helped the seniors choose their dream dresses along with matching shoes to complete their looks.”

Even Lamplighter alumn (1989) Jennifer Kitner Mintz, who now resides in New Orleans, stopped by to help sort, fit, and admire the girls in their new dresses.

The Dallas visitors toured the school’s new building projects and improvements completed since the hurricane. “This trip was an opportunity to serve others,” remarked Sheila McCartor, director of the Lamplighter Alumni Association. “Everyone involved benefitted from the experience.”

Talkin’ ‘bout the Car Wash Lamplighter’s young alumni sponsored a first-ever carwash last May, and it was an overwhelming success. Kate Mosle ’04 directed the project and did an amazing job coordinating. She and her team of 10 other Lamplighter alumni met monthly prior to the event date. They planned every detail, appropriated sponsors, created posters and banners, and collected towels, sponges and other necessary supplies.

The group visited local businesses and secured a number of sponsors whose names were then publicized on the official carwash T-shirt. Sponsors generously supported the group’s efforts on behalf of Lamplighter. Jackson Spencer ’06 designed the T-shirt artwork - a colorful picture of a classic automobile.

Evan O’Brien, ’09 and his band, Plowboy, entertained the crowd, followed by Rand Barnes ’04 and his band, Kelvin 47. The young alumni sold sandwiches from Chick fil-a, cookies, lemonade, and water, as well as the T-shirts.

Everyone who participated seemed to enjoy the afternoon as they listened to original music and enjoyed snacks while their cars were washed and shined. The young alumni raised almost $7,000 for Lamplighter and contributed it to the Land Fund.
Skyping Soldiers

“I had happy inside tears,” said third grader Abby Brand. “I can’t go one night without seeing my family, and the soldiers have been away eight months and four weeks.”

Abby was one of the third grade students at Lamplighter who recently had the opportunity to Skype with U.S. troops in Afghanistan. In early February, the students created Valentines for troops abroad. Soldier Dennis Cohen contacted Lamplighter teachers to let them know they had received the handmade cards on Valentine’s Day and how much that had meant to them.

“While speaking with Dennis, I realized what a wonderful opportunity this was for our students to understand not only what our troops are doing for us but also to learn about another part of the world,” commented Vicki Runey, assistant head for academics.

During the 45-minute conversation, which also included soldier Francis Ziegler from the Dallas area, students were able to ask the soldiers about life in Kabul and how it felt to serve in the military.

Favorite questions included:

What is your favorite food?

Do you get to play video games?

Where do you sleep?

Due to the confidential nature of the soldiers’ mission, they were unable to answer specific questions about it, but according to teacher Jody Stout, “The children participated in an event that has increased their awareness, curiosity, gratitude, and empathy.”

When asked what we at home could do to support them, soldier Cohen said, “When you see soldiers in uniform, thank them for their service. Support from everyone at home means so much to us. And, if you can mail anything, we are very fond of Girl Scout cookies!”

Before saying goodbye to their new friends in Afghanistan, the students serenaded the troops with a rousing rendition of “Deep in the Heart of Texas” followed by the school song, “Lamplighter Spirit.”

Laureate at Lamplighter

If you ask your 10-year-old what she did in school, and she says “Chatted with a Nobel Laureate,” you might want to put a check on her imagination. Unless of course, she goes to Lamplighter, where that statement is totally legit.

Frank Wilczek, 60, the Herman Feshbach Professor of Physics at MIT, was in Dallas to present at the Lightner-Sams Lecture at SMU in late April and made a pit stop at Lamplighter to answer students’ questions, chat about the universe, and admire the school’s roosters.

The Lightner-Sams lecture series was created in honor of Gary McCartor, late husband of Sheila McCartor, executive director of the Lamplighter Alumni Association who arranged Wilczek’s visit. Gary McCort and Wilczek were friends. “He came to SMU several times at Gary’s behest, and worked with him at MIT,” McCartor said.

“I could not have been more pleased. He was sincerely impressed with the school and with our science program. It was gratifying,” said McCartor.

“I have never seen a school designed like Lamplighter,” said Wilczek. “It is beautiful and functional. I can’t believe you have a farm with animals. These roosters look quite formidable!”

Wilczek has received many prizes for his work in physics, including the 2004 Nobel Prize for work he did as a graduate student at Princeton University when he was only 21 years old. Mr. Wilczek is known for a discovery within the world of quarks. This discovery brings physics one step closer to fulfilling a unified theory comprising gravity.

After visiting former Lamplighter teacher John Breitfeller’s science class, Wilczek said he was impressed by the thoughtfulness of the students’ questions including one who asked if he always wanted to be a scientist. “Yes. Since my childhood, I was fascinated with the way things worked, and I never really ever thought about other careers,” Wilczek replied. “I’ve always been drawn by mysteries and puzzles, and science is a very big mystery story.

“Physics is exciting and interesting,” he told them. “You never know what you might find, or you may find nothing at all for a long time. My type of physics is not experimental. I don’t do experiments; I work out calculations.”

Later, the children were intrigued with Professor Wilczek’s story about living in Albert Einstein’s house—a complete with his furniture and many of his artifacts—when he was at the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton.
The Other Side of Fiji

“One of the most famous expressions in Fiji is ‘Bula.’ It is the Fijian word for hello but also means happiness and good health. It is as commonly used as ‘aloha’ in Hawai'i. As a visitor to Fiji you quickly catch on to this ubiquitous greeting, which is often pronounced with great gusto - BULA!” – Debbie Herskovitz

According to this year’s Mattingly Fund Award winner, pre-K teacher Debbie Herskovitz, “We at Lamplighter are very fortunate to work, learn and grow in such a loving, caring, supportive environment, and do not know what it would feel like to be without life’s necessities.” However, she explains, “Others have not been so lucky.”

Debbie spent 15 days in Fiji this past summer volunteering for Global Habitat for Humanity, building a home for a local family.

Among the reasons she was chosen this year included multiple benefits for both herself and for Lamplighter:

- Experiencing a unique culture that she was unfamiliar with;
- Challenging her to expand beyond her personal comfort zone;
- Exposing her to new people and new ideas;
- Undergoing the ultimate in team-building exercises.

The trip to Fiji was a two-week mission. Exploring a new culture and Fiji’s natural wonders was something she really wanted to experience.

Debbie explained why she chose Global Habitat for Humanity versus helping a domestic family. “In my travels throughout the U.S., I certainly have recognized that there is a disparity between those who do and do not have things. But, I assume the need here pales in comparison to the needs in other parts of the world where countries and communities do not have the support and infrastructure to help its citizens the way we as Americans do.”

Through various organizations that Debbie supports, she has volunteered her time and energy to causes she considers important. But, in some cases, she reasons, “I haven’t really been able to see the direct results. The home-building effort through Global Habitat for Humanity enabled me to see a project through from start to finish and interact directly with those I am helping.”

Ultimately, Debbie returned home to Lamplighter from a worthwhile venture for her personally and for the Lamplighter community as a whole. She then expressed her appreciation for this amazing opportunity. “Thank you for granting me this honorable Mattingly Fund Award.”

Lamplighter Parents’ Association Receives Spirit Award

High enthusiasm and profoundly evident Lamplighter Spirit combined to create magical moments and memories for attendees of the Lamplighter Spirit Award Luncheon last February. Along with alumni, some dating back to 1969, past presidents and carnival and auction chairs attended to receive the award.

Jane Hurst, 2010-11 LPA President, accepted the award on behalf of all LPA members. Accompanying her at the podium to receive the award were past presidents Carol McEachern, Carol Ruggeri, and Angela Pittman, who represented multiple decades of service. At the luncheon, Lamplighter singers presented a medley of musical numbers specially chosen for the occasion. Fourth grader Cormick Stockham gave a speech suggesting what it was like to be the child of an LPA president. Ms. Hurst announced that the LPA board unanimously agreed to pledge $1,000,000 to the Land Fund, a pledge which they are well on their way to fulfilling.

News Flash

Every morning, Lamplighter students eagerly anticipate “Flash,” a live morning news broadcast that is shown on smart boards in classrooms. Students enjoy reporting school news, local weather, and special reports all written, directed, filmed, and anchored by Lamplighter fourth graders. The programs are broadcast from a studio equipped with state-of-the-art cameras, teleprompters, lighting, and green screens just like studios of professional television news programs.

Each week a team of eight fourth graders, led by the school’s academic technology coordinator, Kate Ogden, collaborates to create the broadcasts, each student learning a specific job but also learning the importance of teamwork. “I love how well the students have all come together to work as a team,” Ogden commented. “Each group adds a piece to the project, but the project as a whole belongs to the entire fourth grade.”

By the end of the school year, every fourth grader will have worked in every role necessary to produce the broadcasts, from anchor to technician. Judy Gass, last year’s Interim Head of School, says of the initiative, “It’s collaborative and hands-on. Plus the students hone their presentation skills while building community schoolwide.”
The Annual Fund is the lifeblood of Lamplighter. Annual Fund dollars raised during the school year cover the gap between tuition and the actual cost of educating a Lamplighter student.

A successful Annual Fund campaign depends on participation from every member of our school community — trustees, parents, grandparents, alumni, parents of alumni, faculty, staff, and friends. Last year, 100% of trustees and faculty and staff and 95% of parents participated. We hope to reach our goal of 100% participation among parents and of increased participation from alumni, grandparents, and parents of alumni.

Lamplighter strives to keep tuition at a manageable level for a wide range of families. The Annual Fund allows us to continually enhance the classroom experience while limiting tuition increases.

Unlike tuition, contributions to the Annual Fund are tax deductible.

Last year was a momentous year at Lamplighter.

We pulled together as a community and purchased our land while continuing our mission of inspiring children to be lifelong learners. As you will see in the following Annual Report, more than 900 individuals provided the school over $4,600,000 in financial contributions.

Thanks to the commitment of our trustees, life trustees, current and former parents, grandparents, faculty and staff, and alumni, Lamplighter successfully:

• Exceeded the $400,000 Annual Fund goal with 94% parent participation.

• Continued the tradition of the last eight years with 100% faculty and staff participation in the Annual Fund.

• Increased alumni parent participation in the Annual Fund by 17%.

• Boosted alumni annual giving participation by 20%.

• Celebrated the Lamplighter Parents’ Association, recipient of the Spirit Award.

• Started a new tradition with our young alumni (those in high school and middle school) who sponsored a car wash that raised over $7,000.

• Hosted the “Forever in Blue Jeans” auction and socials that raised $232,000 and brought parents together throughout the year.

• Involved more grandparent volunteers than ever at school events, enriching the lives of our students and the community.

Last year was also a time to look forward. To that end, last spring, parents were invited for small round-table discussions about Lamplighter. These conversations will continue with our new Head of School, Joan Hill, throughout 2011-2012 and are extremely important as the school moves into a strategic planning process.

On behalf of our entire school community, I want to extend my heartfelt gratitude for your loyal support of Lamplighter. It is through your continuing generosity that we are able to provide our students with the skills, self-confidence, and love of learning that they need in an ever-changing world.

Thank you for your gifts of leadership and resources that enable Lamplighter to be the best it can be for our children.

In Lamplighter Spirit,

Sandy Diamond
